2 Men Killed In Hyden Wreck

The death of two Hyden men in an accident on Ky. 421, Saturday afternoon, has caused State Police officials here to warn motorists to exercise the "greatest caution" while driving during the Holidays.

Victims in the 2 p.m. accident approximately 2 miles south of Hyden were Charley Sizemore, 22, and Walter Asher, 28. State Police said Sizemore, apparently the driver, ran off the roadside. Both men were dead on arrival at a local hospital.

State Police said it was difficult to determine exactly what caused the accident because the car had been removed when they arrived.

Witnesses told State Police that Sizemore lost control of the car on a curve, and left the road several times before crashing into a tree and turning over on the road. Sizemore was proceeding south when the accident occurred.

Asher was killed instantly when he either fell from the car or leaped out.

State Police said Sizemore was apparently driving at a high rate of speed. The car was demolished.

State Police Sgt. Willard Mitchell said of the threat of holiday accidents:

"With most roads in the mountains clear, the temptation to drive fast during the holidays will be great." Motorist should be aware that traffic is expected to be exceptionally heavy and that every care should be exercised while driving.

Sgt. Mitchell reminded drivers to drive on their own side of the road, noting that a great many accidents in the mountains are caused by drivers who cut curves and then collided with vehicles in the opposite traffic lane.

Sgt. Mitchell also suggested that drivers have their vehicles "safely checked" before starting on long trips over the holidays.

"Faculty brakes, inadequate lighting, slick tires are major causes of accidents. Be sure," he said, "to have your cars in perfect condition."

Sgt. Mitchell also warned sober drivers to beware of the "drunken driver."

"The drinking driver," Mitchell said, "is a major threat to your life during the holidays. Drive defensively and don't trust the driver of any other vehicle."

Fireworks Injure Child

1¢ Fine

A jury, Saturday, fined a Viper resident one cent and costs for selling fireworks after a child was hospitalized with injuries suffered when a "cherry bomb" exploded exploded and blew shrapnel in his leg.

Fined by jury in Magistrate Babe Noplis' court was Russell Cornett, owner of a tavern at Viper. The child hospitalized by the fireworks was Charlie Combs, 11, of Lothair.

Cornett was arrested Thursday when another child identified him as the man who had been selling fireworks to children.

The Combs child was injured when playmates exploded the "bomb" at his feet. He was admitted to the Mt. Mary Hospital where doctors removed the wadding that pierced his leg.

Magistrate Noplis today warned the public that it is illegal to "fire, possess, transport or sell" fireworks in Kentucky.

He noted, however, that the sale of fireworks is flourishing illegally in Perry County and that children are buying them.

City To Ask State For Help on Streets, Roads

Road work for Hazard and Perry County is to be requested by the City Commission sometime in the near future, the Board of Commissioners decided, Thursday night, during a special call meeting.

Taking note of current federal and state interest in this region, the board has agreed to ask the State for help in repaving city roads.

Commissioner Don Fouts, who called the special meeting.

"Our streets are in such terrible shape because of the flood and last winter's freeze that we've just got to have help to get them back in shape."

"I feel that if we approach the State now, we can get their help."

Fouts suggested that the Board cooperate with the Perry County Fiscal Court and County Judge J. A. Smith on the county's road problems.

In other business, board members ordered that the second floor of the City Hall be repaired.

Interrupting the meeting to inspect the building, board members viewed holes in the ceiling where the plaster had fallen. Also approved was an inspection of the building's wiring.

The Board also requested that a light be installed at the L. & N. Railroad swinging bridge on N. Main St., requested the City Manager to check with the Hazard Gas Co. to find out why some gas mains are above ground, and to investigate the possibilities of building a "low-water" bridge across the North Fork of the Kentucky River to the Yards section, where an estimated 100 families reside.

Also questioned during the meeting by Fouts was why the City was having delinquent taxes collected under the commission system by Grover Wilson, delinquent tax collector.

Fouts noted that Wilson is getting 25 percent of the taxes under the present arrangement, but that he (Fouts) would like to see the City "get it all."

Fouts told the board that other cities in the State collect their own delinquent taxes.

$40,000 Blaze Today Destroys County Residence

A $40,000 blaze early this morning gutted an elaborate, 8-room stone residence overlooking Ky. 15 at the Mouth of Lotts Creek.

Cause of the blaze is undetermined. The home, representing a life-time of work, is owned by Sam Turner Jr., a highly successful salesman-manager for Perry Farm Center.

Turner Admitted To Hospital

Turner, his wife, and children were visiting relatives in Leslie County when the blaze broke out at 4 a.m.

No information was available as to the amount or if the home was insured. Turner, who first heard of the blaze over the radio this morning, was admitted to the Miners Memorial Hospital an hour later in a state of shock.

Only the walls and the smoldering remains were left this morning to give evidence of what had once been one of this county's finest residences. Faced with six-inch stone against concrete block and insulated between with rock wool, the home was completed by Turner only last May.

All contents including furniture and clothing were destroyed.

City Fire Chief Lawrence Sizemore said the blaze was beyond the fire department's control when they arrived at the scene with a pumper.

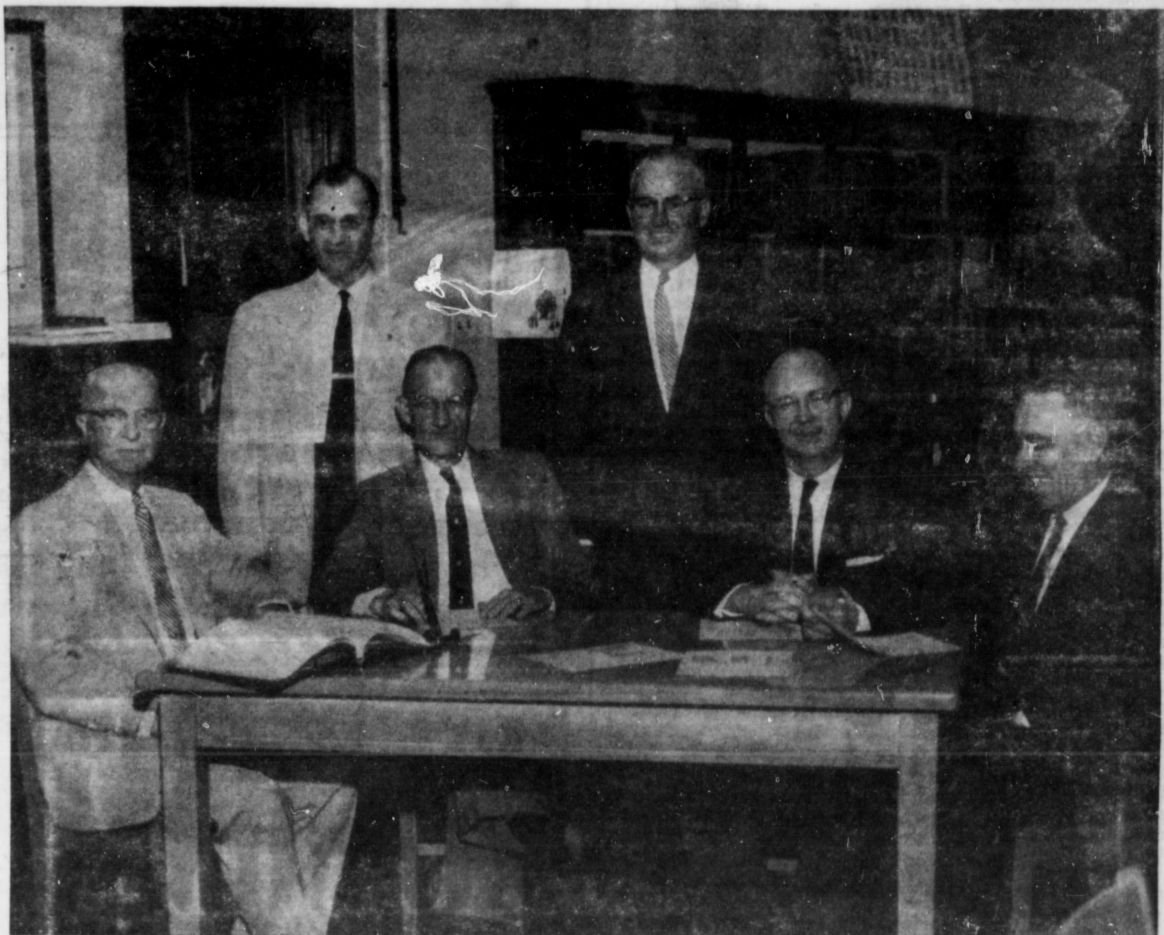

(The county has no fire department. Turner was under a special contract with the City which permits the City Department to provide fire protection to his home.)

Blaze Started In Roof

Chief Sizemore said the blaze appeared to have started in the roof. It spread quickly to the home's wood-finished walls and floors. Firemen were hampered in their efforts to control the blaze by an absence of water and pressure. Hose had to be run to a steam nearby and pumped up the terraced front yard of the home.

The home included an attached garage with a patio overhead, a living kitchen, dining room, living room, three bedrooms.

In a fire call at the Hal Cooner Studio this morning, firemen extinguished a blaze when a curtain was ignited while a welder was working in the ceiling of the studio. Sizemore said the curtain was destroyed and minor smoke damaged suffered by the photographic studio.

Breathitt County Edges Hazard

A last second field goal by Forward Walt Greene was nullified at Jackson, Saturday night by the official timekeeper, to give Breathitt County a 61-59 triumph over the Hazard High School Bulldogs.

With 25 seconds remaining, Hazard stayed in possession until the closing second when Greene, rebounding his own shot, tucked the tying goal in as the horn rang.

The official time-keeper ruled that Greene's goal came after the buzzer.

LETTER FROM MRS. JOHN SHERMAN COOPER

Coopers Write Interesting Letter From England; Mingle With Royalty

Dear Mrs. Cooper:
I am taking this opportunity of answering your sweet letter. So many interesting things have happened to us on this trip that there is something I want to tell you almost every day.

Last week we flew over to London to meet the Vice President and Mrs. Nixon. As you know, the Vice President was President Eisenhower's representative at the consecration and dedication of the new American Memorial Chapel in Saint Paul's Cathedral, commemorating the 28,000 Americans who died in England during the War.

The ceremony took place the Wednesday before Thanksgiving. We left the Hotel in style in an Embassy car with a red sticker on it so we could get into the crowded streets leading to the Cathedral. As we drove near, the strains of music from the military bands could be heard and we saw the different divisions of the American Army, Air Force and Marine regiments marching along with British troops on their way to Saint Paul's.

As we walked up the wide steps of this historic Church, we saw many friends from the U.S. who had flown over for the ceremony. We were led down the great center aisle and given seats only four rows behind the three large golden armchairs facing the aisle and in which were seated the Queen, Prince Philip and the Queen Mother. It was a moving and majestic ceremony. In the congregation which packed the house, there were seven members of the Royal Family, the Prime Minister of England and members of the government, many distinguished Americans and, most important, 12 mothers and next-of-kin of Americans servicemen who had been killed in England during the War.

Outside Saint Paul's Cathedral, crowds waited throughout—British and Americans standing limply in the fog, but inside the scene was brilliantly lit, with only the dome soaring into the shadow. There was color everywhere—military uniforms, the red of the city dignitaries, the gold and scarlet of the Clergy.

Soon after we were seated, the Churchmen began their procession to the aisle. Then, at 11:35, a fanfare of trumpets announced the arrival of Vice President and Mrs. Nixon. A second fanfare of trumpets announced the arrival of the Queen. The Queen and the Vice President proceeded down the aisle together, followed by Mrs. Nixon and Prince Philip. They were seated across the aisle from the queen, who, looking lovely in grey, sat next to Prince Philip and the Queen Mother, with Princess Margaret, the Princess Royal, the Duchess of Kent and Alexandra to their right.

After preliminary prayers and a psalm, they left their places and walked in procession to the Chapel behind the High Altar. Our Vice President walked beside the Queen and Prince Philip again escorted Mrs. Nixon. The Bishop of Canterbury dedicated the Chapel in "honour of our brethren who living among us gave their lives in the cause of justice and truth." He made the sign of the cross four times on the bare altar table. Then, the ornaments, red velvet cloth and candles were placed on it. Lord Bailieu, Chairman of the Chapel's Funds Committee, stepped forward and said to the Queen: "I humbly beg your Majesty to unveil the memorial inscription." The Queen replied "It is my will and pleasure so to do." Her voice, low and clear, was plainly heard throughout the Cathedral. It was a historic moment, for no reigning monarch ever before had spoken in public at Saint Paul's.

The trumpets sounded the haunting notes of taps, followed briskly by reveille, while the Queen and the others in the procession returned to their places. As they did so, our Great American hymn, "Mine Eyes Have Seen the Glory of the Coming of the Lord," was magnificently sung by the huge choir. Our battle flag "Old Glory" lay beside the altar. It had been borne into the Cathedral at the beginning of the ceremony by three of our servicemen. The sight of our flag being borne down the aisle brought tears of pride to the eyes of every American. I was so busy trying not to fumble for my pocket handkerchief and trying to stand up as straight as I could, that I didn't look at anyone else's reaction, but I was told by others that there wasn't anybody from our country who didn't have the same emotion. At the end of the service, they carried our flag back to the center aisle again, while the trumpeter sounded a resounding call for the American national anthem. They played the "Star Spangled Banner" magnificently, with the trumpets lifting the anthem to the very dome of the Cathedral, and then there was another fanfare for "God Save the Queen," and the service was over.

The Queen then shook hands with each of the 12 American next-of-kin who had flown over especially to be present, and the crowd in front of the Cathedral cheered mightily as the Queen and the Nixons drove away.

The next highlight of the visit was the brilliant Thanksgiving dinner given that night at the American Embassy by the Vice President and Mrs. Nixon in honor of the Queen.

We arrived at Winfield House at 8 o'clock sharp and had time to see how beautifully our Embassy had been arranged by Ambassador and Mrs. Whitney. As you know, the Whitneys have one of the greatest collections of French Impressionist pictures that exists and I don't know if there is another Embassy in the world that has such a great collection of paintings on its walls. Besides the beauty and warmth of this fine Georgian house, Betsy Whitney, one of the three beautiful Cushing sisters of Boston, has most exquisite taste. Her arrangements of flowers, of furniture, is very particularly her own, and the agreeableness of this atmosphere makes every guest feel happy and welcome.

All of the 544 guests were gathered in the large drawing room when the Queen arrived. We formed a large circle and the Queen was escorted to say "Good evening" to everyone by the Vice President and the Ambassador.

The Queen wore a lovely white satin dress, embroidered in pale pink roses, with sea green leaves, which blended beautifully with her necklace, earrings and bracelets of aquamarines and diamonds.

I am happy to report that our American ladies looked lovely. Betsy Whitney wore a beautiful dark green dress with the new Empire waistline and Mrs. Lauris Norstad, whose husband is the Commanding General of SHAPE (Supreme Headquarters—Allied Powers—Europe) and who had flown from SHAPE Headquarters just outside of Paris for the dedication ceremony and the dinner, was particularly attractive in blue.

I was delighted with myself, as I had just gotten a new dark red satin dress and it fitted me perfectly. So I had that wonderful feeling of being pleased with my own dress, which I know every woman will understand. The dining room at Winfield House looked particularly lovely that night. Betsy Whitney had arranged and decorated everything in typical Thanksgiving style, except that I have never seen it as well done before. At the Vice President's table there were decorations of fruit with a special bowl of pale yellow roses in front of the Queen and at each of the other small tables of eight, the same motif of fruit was followed. There was one detail which I found particularly delicious—the huge golden candelabras on the sideboard were hung with great clusters of black and green grapes.

I know you want to hear what we had for dinner—so here's the menu: Oyster stew, roast turkey, cranberry sauce, sweet potatoes, green vegetables, ice cream and mince and pumpkin pies. It was all frightfully good, but I'll tell you confidentially, it didn't taste one bit like it would have at home, as the French cook did his level best to turn out an American dinner, but it had a distinctly French accent!

After dinner, both John and I had the honor of having a conversation with the Queen. She asked me to describe the Kentucky Derby to her and said she wished it were possible for her to visit Kentucky.

The Queen enjoyed the evening so much that she didn't leave until 12:30. Then the Prime Minister and Lady Dorothy MacMillan stayed until after 1:00 a.m., so that the Nixons, the Whitneys and the Coopers were not able to get to the American Thanksgiving Party on about 800 persons until after 1:30 A.M. The place was still crowded, however, and a great cheer went up when the Vice President and Mrs. Nixons, looking lovely as usual in gold and green lame, arrived. The Vice President gave a short and excellent talk, and so ended the most unusual Thanksgiving I have ever spent.

The next day we flew to with Ambassador Butterworth, our representative on the European Common Market, about the proposed tariffs for tobacco. Then back to Paris.

I will write you about the UNESCO meeting in my next letter.

Ever your devoted daughter-in-law,
Lorraine Cooper

With Center Billy Nickells hitting for 19 points to take scoring honors for the Coach Pete Grigsby Navajos, Napier broke loose in the second quarter from a 10-10 deadlock to go ahead 30-20 at halftime.

The Navajos' now 4-3, were ahead at the close of the third quarter, 45-35. The loss was Prestonsburg's third in eight outings.

Dilce Combs ran its record for the year to 11-3 as the Panther's Farmer "Bo" Begley connected for 20 points against an undermanned Leatherwood quintet.

Coach Roscoe Shackelford's five leaped to a 14-7 advantage at the close of the first quarter, were ahead 31-18 at halftime, and on top 48-25 at the end of the third frame.

Bad Roads Stop School Buses

Because of bad road conditions the Bowlingtown School bus was the only one of the Buckhorn School busses that ran Monday, and all students of Buckhorn High and grade school were dismissed at 10:00 a.m. because of the lack of heat and not enough students to hold classes.

Mrs. Polly Rice has been very sick for the past week. We wish her a very speedy recovery.

To each and every valued friend, we wish good fortune without end. Here's to your happiness, health and good cheer, at this joyous season and throughout the New Year. May your holiday time be merry and bright, and may all your dearest wishes turn out just right.

Christmas At Grandma's

When we went down to grandma's house
So early in the morn,
We saw the cookies piled up high
And balls of fresh popcorn.

I wrapped my little dollies up
And pulled them on a sled.
My grandma warmed their little feet
And put them all to bed.

We hopped and danced and skipped and played,
Beneath the Christmas tree.
We made a snow man in the yard
As big as he could be.

My brother tied his little train
To grandma's great big bed.
We quickly dashed out in the yard
To ride our Christmas sled.

When we came in to warm our hands
And dry our little mittens;
I thought I heard my dollies cry—
'Twas grandma's little kittens.

My grandma said, "Long time ago

In Bethlehem afar,
The wise men carried precious gifts
Beneath the shining star.

"They found a manger filled with straw
Which made a little bed,
Where Jesus found his earthly home,
And laid his little head.

"The angels sang of peace on earth
That Jesus came to give,
If we love him in our hearts
He'll teach us how to live."

When grandma called us in to eat,
The table was so bright
With turkey, pie, and lovely things
And Christmas candle light.

We bowed our heads and grandpa said,
"Dear God, bring peace on earth
And fill our hearts with love and joy
On Jesus' blessed birth."

Four Counties Added To Deer-Stock Program

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 19 (Special) — Four more counties were added to the list of Kentucky's deerstocked areas today and 15 were tabbed to receive deer during 1959.

Arnold Mitchell, director of the Kentucky Division of Game, said deer stocking operations have been completed in Logan, Marion, Taylor, and Warren counties and could be opened to hunters in 1964.

Regulations require a five-year period after the final stocking before a county can be opened to deer hunting in order that the local herd may have an opportunity to grow and establish itself.

The four new counties completed this year bring to 49 the total number of Kentucky counties now completely stocked with deer. Thirty-one of those counties are open to hunting. The other 18 will be opened as the five-year waiting period runs out.

Mitchell said 15 new counties are slated to receive deer during 1959.

No Room In The Inn

by Grace Williams
211 Baker Ave.

In Bethlehem a baby lay,
In a manger filled with hay,
And by this bed his mother sat,
And thought of this and thought of that.

How at the Inn that day they said,
There was no room, there was no bed.
There was no room for the mother there,
No hospitality anywhere.

A new Star shone above the barn,
Where the baby lay, so snug and warm.
There in the barn amid the hay,
For there was no room in the Inn that day.

The shepherds tending their sheep that night,
Saw the Star that was shining so bright.
And they gave thanks to God above,
That they were delivered by His love.

The Wise men were waiting for the sign,
They knew that it was almost time,
For the Star called Jesus to appear
And rule His people both far and near.

And when they saw His star in the East,
They wished their eyes on Him might feast.
They brought Him gifts of rare perfumes,
And the finest silks from eastern looms.

They were to return to Herod the King,
And report to him the truth of this thing.
But the Wise Men were warned in a dream that night,
To flee from Herod with all their might.

To the Wise Men returned another way,
And to King Herod had nothing to say.
While on the throne King Herod said,
We have no peace until this child is dead.

He sent his soldiers and armed men,
To slay all children in Bethlehem.
From two years old and under, there,
Should no child escape anywhere.

Now Mary and Joseph were warned of this thing,
That was to be done by Herod the King.
And fled to Egypt an alien land,
To escape the wrath of King Herod's hand.

They feared to return to their native land,
They feared King Herod and his soldiers band.
They had no home to call their own,
From City to City his family roamed.

There was no room in the Inn that night,
There still was no room for them in sight.
The ground was their bed and the road their home,
As through an unfriendly land they roamed.

Today we find people as through life we go,
Some of them perhaps you know,
Who have no room in the Inn for him,
No room in their heart because of sin.

Politely this people quietly say,
We have no room for you today.
As he is turned away from the hearts of men,
As of old when there was no room in the Inn.

Weekly Sunday School Lesson

December 21, 1958
"JOY AT THE SAVIOUR'S BIRTH"
Scripture Lesson: Luke 1:26-56; 2:1-20

Those who love, find joy.

So much has been written about finding happiness in recent years of tension when man is whittling on the stick of Providence, sharpening his usefulness by seeking to do away with the necessity of Time and Space, discovering and capturing the power within the atom. If anyone is really looking for happiness, and each of us, we must first learn to love before we can know the joy of the Spirit and find joy in the Birth of our Saviour.

We must learn to love the things of the Spirit. Love is not confined to the things of the flesh, indeed we never truly learn to love until we have learned to live ABOVE the flesh. God is love. We will love the Word of God when we truly love, for the Word of God incarnate is Jesus Christ. We must love God's Son if His birth is to have meaning for us, if we are to find joy in the Christmas message and meaning.

If we love His Son, we will love also His children. In loving His children, we love Him. Herein is a test of our faith. Do we truly love, either God or man? If we love one, we will love the other, for "he that loveth is born of God and knoweth God, he that loveth not, knoweth not God." (1 John).

Joy is found in the anticipation of His Birth; it is found in the Annunciation; Joy is found in the Incarnation (God made flesh in the birth of His Son, Jesus Christ). Joy is found in the worship of God, in giving gifts in love. There is joy in our fellowship with God in the Spirit, made possible thru the birth and death of His Son and we find joy in friendship with those who also love. Finally there is joy in the service of Christ our King, thru witnessing to His Saving Power and ministering in love to the needs of others.

The Joy of Anticipation is the Joy of Hope. Since the dawn of Creation in the Garden of Eden, the Hope of a Saviour and the forgiveness of sins has been given of God, planted in the hearts of men and women. God's Word was given. This is the most powerful and important thing in the World today!

The Promise was: "The seed of the woman shall bruise the serpent's head; he shall bruise his heel." All down thru the generations this Promise has been ringing in the hearts of men and received by faith thru the sacrifices of perfectly formed animals. These sacrifices were filled with the hope of the coming Saviour, "The Lamb of God who would take away the sins of the world."

In the fullness of Time the Angel Gabriel was sent to Mary, a virgin in the City of Galilee, Nazareth. Mary, who was engaged to Joseph, was chosen to be the mother of Jesus, the Son of God. Mary was filled with the Spirit. She was a dedicated soul. She said: "Behold the handmaid of the Lord; be it unto me according to thy word." I love this word given by Mary. What joy there is to be found in such a complete dedication as is seen here! How beautiful, too, is the part that Joseph played: "Being a just man, he was minded to put her away privily (thinking that Mary had committed fornication), being unwilling to make a public example of her." This lesson of a forgiving spirit is the basis of the story of the Birth of Jesus. There is joy in forgiving. There can be no joy until forgiveness is given. The unforgiving spirit never finds peace.

There was joy with Elizabeth. The babe in her womb (John the Baptist) leaped when Mary spoke to her. The Joy of His Salvation is the greatest joy to be known in the earth. "This my son was lost, and is found!" There was joy with the Shepherds when the Angel Choir appeared to sing to them: "Glory to God in the Highest and on earth peace, good will toward men." (Luke 2:14).

There is joy for mankind in the leveling power of the birth of Jesus. "He hath shewed strength with his arm; he hath scattered the proud in the imagination of their hearts. He hath put down the mighty from their seats, and exalted them of low degree." (Luke 1:51,52).

A dear soul in the hospital said to me, said to me with earnest desire in seeking: "Can you make me understand?" In as kindly a way as I could I said to her: "No, lady, I cannot make you understand, but God can." Then I quoted to her Isaiah 40:31. "They that wait on the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles, they shall run and not be weary, they shall walk and faint not." God did make her understand. There is great joy in the birth of Jesus. He conquered death by death and gives us eternal life. He and He alone gives understanding to us in a world of sin and sorrow.

Kentucky POWER COMPANY

Jerry Boyle Not So Bad As Successors

by Charles F. Hinds
Jerry Boyle had a tough time of it in the Civil War as commander of the Kentucky Military Department from 1862 to 1864. Kentuckians found out one thing, though, before the war was over, and that was his two successors, Burbridge and Palmer, could be even more discomfiting.

General Jeremiah Tilford Boyle was born in Mercer County in 1818, the son of John Boyle, chief justice of the Kentucky Court of Appeals. Jeremiah received a classical education at Centre and Princeton and studied law in the office of Governor William Owsley and at Transylvania. He practiced law in Danville until the outbreak of the Civil War.

Though a slaveholder, he was an early adherent of the Unionist view. He was commissioned a brigadier general of volunteers in the fall of 1861, and as a result of a modest success as a military leader, of gallantry under fire at Shiloh, and of political strings, General Boyle was placed in command of the Kentucky District on June 1, 1862.

Boyle found his fellow-Kentuckians rapidly becoming dissatisfied with President Lincoln and with Northern occupation. Harassed at every turn, Boyle was soon faced with the ubiquitous General Morgan, guerrillas, Confederate sympathizers, and a full-scale invasion of Kentucky from the South. He acted forthrightly and was no doubt overzealous in his attempt to coerce Kentucky into being loyal to the North.

Kentuckians objected to Boyle's strong measures. Arrests were ordered for all persons who seemed to be of Confederate opinion and for those who objected to the tyranny of irresponsible Union officers who came to extract oaths of allegiance to the United States. And this in a neutral state.

General Boyle was relieved of his command in January of 1864 and was replaced by General Stephen Burbridge in the following month. Burbridge made himself disagreeable by such high-handed actions as having four "guerrillas" shot for each Union sympathizer murdered, enlisting Negro "men, women, and children" in the Union Army, and dissolving the Kentucky state militia.

Kentucky breathed a sigh of relief when Lincoln replaced Burbridge in February of 1865 with Major General John M. Palmer, only to discover in short order that Palmer was as radical as Burbridge. By this time, Kentuckians probably were wishing they had their Jerry Boyle back; and, then, the War was suddenly over.

Lincoln's Visit To Farmington To Be Re-Enacted

Frankfort, Dec. 19 — Abraham Lincoln and friend Joshua Speed will walk the wide halls of Farmington when the 148-year-old Louisville, Kentucky, home is formally opened April 18.

Historica Homes Foundation, owner of the residence built by John Speed, plans a re-enactment of Lincoln's visit to the Speed family in 1841 to see his close friend, Joshua, son of the builder.

The return of Lincoln when 32 years old to his home state, will be portrayed as the Commonwealth celebrates the 150th birth anniversary of the 16th President.

The re-enactment will start at the Ohio riverfront, with the young lawyer from Springfield, Ill., stepping into a carriage. It will close with the Speeds greeting Lincoln at Farmington. Here, a chorus will sing the Norman Dello Joio song, "Somebody's Comin'" from the production, "The Tall Kentuckian."

Descendants of the pioneer Speeds will be asked to portray the roles of their ancestors.

The program's emphasis will be on pageantry, colorful costumes and music—no speeches. Punch, made by an old Speed family recipe, will be served those who tour the dwelling after the formal ceremonies.

Three of the main rooms in the 14-room house will be furnished with authentic pieces of the early 19th century to maintain the home as a faithful restoration of its period. It is planned to reproduce vegetable and flower gardens using only plants known at the time the Speeds established the residence.

The Historic Homes Foundation bought the property for $65,000. The date of the formal opening, April 18, has no historical significance, except that it falls within the Lincoln sesquicentennial year, to be nationally observed in 1959.

Warm and hearty New Year's greetings to our many friends. You've made us happy by your patronage, and our wish and pledge is that we will always try to make you happy. We thank you sincerely, and we hope that 1959 will bring you good cheer and good luck.

The machine said "Click, Click", out jumped a card reading, your name is Ance York, weight 140 lbs., twenty-five years old, and your train leaves at 6:30 p. m., he looked around to see if anybody was looking, then dropped in another dime, "Click...", another card pops out, same thing, Ance York, age 25, Wt. 140 lbs. Your train leaves at 6:30 p. m. He tried it the third time, "Click, Click", the card jumps out, saying, name, Ance York, age 25, Wt. 140 lbs., your train has gone. VISIBLE AND INVISIBLE

by Winn T. Barr

Sometimes you cannot see sugar. Put a teaspoonful of white sugar in a glass of water, and soon you cannot see it. It has dissolved. You cannot tell by looking at tea or coffee whether it has been sweetened. If the sugar is there, you cannot see it. Have you ever sipped some unsweetened lemonade, or bitten into a piece of lemon pie that the sugar was mistakenly left off? There is such a thing as invisible sugar! It is invisible in solution.

But sometimes you can see sugar. Take that glass of water and boil it off and the sugar will be left. When you buy sugar, it's a solid that comes in bags or boxes. It is very visible. Sugar forms visible crystals. In solution it is invisible, but crystallized it is visible.

But whether it is invisible or not you can always taste it. In this way you can detect its presence even when it cannot be seen. And even when you do see it, you cannot be sure it is sugar until you taste it. It might be salt, or it might be the crystals of some other chemical. THE ONLY SURE TEST IS THE TASTE TEST. Certainly it won't give you any energy and strength until you taste it. You have to taste it to get any good from it.

Sometimes you cannot see God. In fact, that is normal with God. The divine essence is invisible. God is present everywhere in everything. You might say that normally God is in solution. He's in the tree, but you cannot see Him. He's in the air, but you cannot see Him. He's in the earth, but you cannot see Him. He's in us, but you cannot see Him.

However, the time came that God was seen. God became crystallized in Jesus. "The only begotten Son—He hath declared Him" (John 1:18). "The Word was made flesh and we beheld His glory" (John 1:14). He was God manifest in the flesh, the visible representation of the invisible God, in whom dwelt all the fulness of deity (Col 2:9). This Child was set for a sign (Luke 2:34). This sign is the focal point where we see God, the definite indicator of God. This sign is the big question, the turning point at the crossroads. From there men go one way or the other.

But there's a big difference between the crystallization of sugar and, speaking figuratively, the crystallization of God. Any sugar can be crystallized anytime. It is all subject to that process, and it can be dissolved back again into solution. But only a certain part of God (one person of the Trinity, the Son) became crystallized at a certain time (the first Christmas). And He has not been dissolved back into invisible solution. He had and still has a glorified body in which He ascended from the earth and will some day descend to the earth (Acts 1:11). Somewhere in this universe is the priceless crystal of God. He was seen of men, and through the eyes of the disciples, you can see Him too.

But let's not stop at looking. After all, our looking is second-hand. We have not seen the Christ in the flesh, have we? Never mind, you can always taste Him. You may not have seen Him as the Apostles did, but you can detect His presence nonetheless. Indeed, if you did see Him, you wouldn't be sure it was He till you tasted. You cannot afford to believe every person who calls himself Christ. THE ONLY TEST IS THE TASTE TEST. You'd have to listen to Him and deal with Him before you'd know. "O taste and see that the Lord is good." Sugar won't do you any good unless you taste it. Neither will the Lord unless you taste Him. He can be detected, if you will taste.

Christmas Tree Plantings On Test At Eden Shale

Christmas tree production is one of the research problems being studied at the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station's Eden Shale farm in Owen county.

Station foresters already have planted several species of Christmas trees in the belief that Kentucky, and the Eden Shale area in particular, might be well suited geographically and climatically for production of such trees.

The Eden Shale farm is in a belt of soil which nearly encircles the Central Blue Grass area. It is marked by steep slopes, high potash content and an underlying strata that makes storage of ground water difficult. The farm was purchased a few years ago by Eden Shale area farmers and given the station for research on problems peculiar to the area.

Foresters now are checking the third-year stand of Scotch, Austrian, red, and white pines, Norway spruce and Douglas fir. This species trial will be continued eight years; at the end of the eighth year the first plot planted will be cut and replanted, based on information gained in the preceding years.

Brush and weed control is a forestry problem and research is being conducted at Eden Shale on that subject. Also, rabbit-repellents are being tested; these little animals can wreck a stand of young seedlings in short order.

In addition, the foresters are checking management of "old" woods, to determine when to thin out less desirable species, and checking management of natural stands of cedar and locust trees for fence-post utilization.

UK Station Starts Ornamental Research

State growers of flowers and nursery plants—whether commercial enterprises or "garden variety"—will be getting help from the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station this year and from now on.

The horticulture department has started a research program in ornamentals and assigned one man to it full-time, James D. Kelley. One "crop" of flowers has been run through the research mill. Work also has been started on shrubs and shade trees, areas that have a fairly sizeable income in Kentucky and which offer considerable opportunity as specialty crops. Kelley and confers reason that if thousands of dollars worth of flowers and shrubs are shipped into Kentucky annually—somebody here might as well profit by growing these plants in the state. For instance thousands of gladioli, delphinium, asters, mums, orchids and pot plants are sent here in quantity. The ones grown here commercially are not meeting the demand.

In the nursery field, Kentucky fares somewhat better, but a strong demand exists for high quality shrubs and shade trees. The demand for nursery stock is expected to double in the next few years. A large share of the business is concerned with Japanese yew and other evergreens, and Kelley feels that the demand for this type plant will expand, with many being shipped out to other states.

Original research at the University will be concerned with the best methods of fertilizing Japanese yew as well as the other evergreen plants. Work will also include testing the adaptability of new flowers, shrubs, and shade trees for Kentucky.

Growing plants in cans promises to become an important part of the nursery business because of the numerous advantages it offers to the grower as well as the consumer. "Canned" plants are easier to plant, and planting is possible almost any month of the year.

Work with flowers is concerned with keeping qualities of snapdragons, hyacinths, Easter lilies, chrysanthemums and others. Kelley will also use gibberellic acid on flowering pot plants to see if he can increase the size of the flower as well as prolong its life.

Opportunities in floriculture and ornamental horticulture in the state are "enormous," Kentucky is situated on a borderline as far as climate and growing are concerned, and has excellent soil as well.

WHY CHRIST CAME

by E. Tipton Carroll

"I came that they may have life, and have it abundantly." John 10:10. Christmas ushers in primarily thought of the Christ Child, of peace on earth and good will toward one another, the giving of self to others feel good; joyousness in the as good deeds, presents, sending greetings, helping to make others feel good; joyousness in the inner life that finds expression in carols, a warm feeling all over, radiance of facial expression; and happiness primarily in being alive and able to share our good things with others.

Yet, why did Christ come? What practical significance has the advent of the Savior for you and me? Why do we celebrate Christmas in a world like ours? A world that is devoting most of its brains, money, production, and know-how to the building up of nuclear forces to destroy human beings without regard to whether or not they are innocent or guilty of crime against society. These are legitimate thoughts, especially at Christmas time.

Why did Christ come? From time immemorial men have sought to live abundantly. They have tried various ways of living in their search. Christ said that he came to give men what they search for, "abundant life." Some of the ways men have tried to find abundant life and are trying them today are:

Materialism—the way of life that says all facts are explained by matter and motion. It says that the physical and spiritual are explained by the physical and chemical changes or processes in the nervous system.

Pragmatism—it says that the emphasis is upon the useful, the purposeful; only that which has some practical use is real. It is a medium between extreme idealism and ultramaterialism.

Rationalism—it places the emphasis upon reason. It denies knowledge through any other source other than reason. Consequently it denies the way of life set forth in the Bible and is revealed religion.

Idealism—it lays the emphasis upon abstract perfection. It is concerned with imagination and ideals in the abstract. It is out of touch with life as it must be and is lived.

Epicureanism—It says that life consists in the pursuit and attainment of pleasure; only the pleasurable is real.

Hedonism—it is Epicureanism gone to seed. It pursues selfish indulgence at any cost.

Stoicism—is the way of the strong, manifesting indifference to either joy or pain. It leaves completely out the great mass of us who are not supermen.

Humanism—This way of life says man is sufficient unto himself. Man needs nothing outside of himself to accomplish what he desires. Man is his own god.

The Christian view of life is the "abundant life" way. It says that Christ came to show us how to live, to make us throbb and pulsate with abundant divine energy. The Christian way of life ignores neither the physical, nor the pleasurable, nor the useful, unless they be hurtful. It is not unmindful of the mental, the intellectual, the emotional, the rationalistic, the reasonable, unless they confine life's interpretation to the mental or material.

The Christian way of life says the physical, the purposeful, the reasonable, the ideal, are consummated in the "abundant life" Christ came to give. It says that there can be no abundant life in the purely material, or the ideal. For one of these ways is all matter and the other is all dreams. The Christian way of life correlates the two and combines them into the "abundant life" in Christ.

The reason Christ came, then, is to correct the ways of life men have devised for themselves and to give them a way of life that permits them to find their fulfillment as Sons of God. When our lives are marred and scarred and blotted like a book, Christ came to correct them and to rewrite them. When our lives, like a picture, are out of perspective, lacking in tone, color and purpose, Christ came to put beauty, perspective and purpose into them. In a spiritual sense, our lives may be like a song, lacking in harmony, sweetness, and rhythm. When such is the case, Christ came to supply these and make our lives complete.

Why did Christ come? He came to be our divine sufficiency in all things. He came to be All in us all. In His own words, he said he came "that they may have life, and have it abundantly." He did not come to be a weakling Babe adored for his innocence. He came that He might be the all sufficient power in all of life, no matter what condition that life may be in. And He is that power to all who will let him into their lives. So His message at this Christmas time and for all time is, "abundant life." May it be yours now and always.
